

INOPPORTUNE AND INSINCERE LOW TARIFF MOTION IS VOTED DOWN IN THE HOUSE

OUT AND FREE TRADERS CONDEMNED ACTION OF A. R. McMASTER AS UNWISE, AND ONLY INTENDING TO EMBARRASS THE COUNTRY—NOT INTENDING TO SECURE SUCCESS, AND WAS PLAYING A PARTY GAME.

Ottawa, Ont., March 26.—By a vote of 115 to 61, the house last night rejected a low tariff motion by A. R. McMaster, of Bromine. There were only two "switches," and, curiously, both were on the opposition side of the house. The two opposition members were L. A. Lapointe (Montreal, St. James), and Francis McCrea, of Sherbrooke. Hon. W. S. Fielding voted with the government, as did all the liberal unionists.

The position taken by them generally was that the motion was not made in sincerity and was intended to embarrass.

Mr. Fielding declared the motion was not wise and should not have been made.

Dr. Michael "Jack" of Red Deer, a unionist free trader, held that the amendment was not intended to succeed and was playing the party game.

Hon. T. A. Cresswell followed a similar line. He would not, he said, disguise the fact that he had always believed in a low tariff, but Mr. McMaster's amendment was brought in at an inopportune time and the object was not above criticism. Were the amendment carried, the country would be plunged into a general election. "Liberals," Mr. Cresswell declared, "will have to go a very long way before they convince western farmers of their sincerity on this matter."

Levi Thompson, Qu'Appelle, said he would go as far as to declare that protection was a virtue in principle. But the McMaster amendment, Mr. Thompson argued, was intended to place western members on the government side of the house in a difficult position. Accordingly, he would vote against it.

Hon. Frank Carvell, who seconded a similar amendment proposed by Hon. Frank Oliver in 1917, did not feel justified in voting for an amendment which would have the effect of bringing on a general election.

McMASTER'S ARGUMENT
Mr. McMaster, in moving this amendment, indicated the additional amount which a farmer in the west has to pay for his clothing and for the cost of tariffs on woolen underclothing, if coming from England, a duty of 27 1/2 per cent. Thus on a two dollar shirt he would have to pay 55 cents extra duty and possibly ten cents for freight and insurance. When the importer came to calculate his profit, he would charge it not on the original price of the amendment was virtually a vote of want of confidence in the government and that it should therefore be voted down.

D. D. McKenzie, leader of the opposition, said the tariff was one of vital importance and he considered that there was nothing improper in the Liberals laying their cards on the table and telling the house and the people of this country what they were prepared to do if they desired.

REASONS ARE PLAIN
Dr. Michael Clark, Red Deer, declared he was not hesitating in voting against the amendment. "I shall do so," he said, "from very plain reasons, which will commend themselves to the country and to the people of Western Canada." He would vote against it, he went on, in the first place, because the amendment was not meant to succeed. The opposition knew very well how it would be treated. They knew it would be voted down. Ostensibly it was an amendment to change the government from one set of raters to another. In reality it would have no such effect, nor was it meant to have that effect.

In the second place, he would not vote for it, because there were certain possibilities in regard to the handling of the tariff. It was very sweeping a resolution, and he thoroughly endorsed what Sir Thomas White had said about the inappropriateness of introducing an amendment which should have been put as an amendment to the budget.

Were the government to accept the amendment weeks before the changes advocated in it could possibly be put into effect in the budget, the result would be to defeat the very object aimed at, because commercial transactions would take place in the interval.

HISTORY OF LIBERALISM
Dr. Clark compared what had been done during the Liberal administration in Canada with 15 years of Liberal government in Great Britain in regard to tariff reduction.

Sir Robert Peel, Dr. Clark said, began in 1842 with minor tariff reductions and the introduction of an income tax. Already Sir Thomas White had achieved fifty per cent. of this in introducing an income tax.

After reviewing tariff history in Canada under the Liberal regime, Dr. Clark declared that the Liberal government went to sleep for ten years.

That in 1907 they aligned with the tariff. Absolutely trifling changes, which made the duty on woollens, to which Mr. McMaster had referred, was increased. "Anyone would think," Dr. Clark remarked, to much laughter from the government side of the house, "that the climate had been so cold that the Liberal party as the fiscal Rip Van Winkle."

Dr. Clark declared that the amendment was asking for ten times as many tariff changes by the government in war time as were made by the Liberal government in the times of peace. The amendment was highly regrettable and was calculated to upset the trade of the country. It had it an element of insincerity and was playing the purely party game.

RESOLUTION INOPPORTUNE
Hon. T. A. Cresswell, minister of agriculture, said he wished to be quite frank with the house on this matter.

His record on tariff questions was well known in that part of the country which he came from. When he entered the government, he had done so from a sense of duty. He did not disguise the fact that he had always believed in low tariff policy, but thought that the member for Bromine had introduced his resolution at an inopportune moment, and that his object was not above criticism.

The amendment, said Mr. Cresswell, could not be accepted by the government, because its acceptance would mean the overthrow of the government and the plunging of this country into a general election, which was not desirable at the present time. He would, therefore, vote against it.

Mr. McMaster: "If I withdraw my amendment, will the minister of agriculture pledge himself to vote for a similar one introduced at the time of the budget debate?"

Mr. Cresswell replied that Mr. McMaster was very ingenious in trying to tie him down, but he refused to be caught. He proposed to state his views on the subject, but he would not say, however, that there was a very strong feeling in the west in favor of tariff reduction.

In the general, however, would have to go a very long way before they convinced the western farmers of their sincerity on this matter. The government was not in a position to take a situation in a critical manner, and the action of the opposition in introducing the resolution would not tend to influence them in favor of the Liberal party.

WHOLE OF EGYPT NOW IN A STATE OF INSURRECTION

COUNTRY HAS TO APPEAL TO MEN BEING DISCHARGED TO SAVE THEIR COMRADES

London, March 26.—Defending the military service bill in the house of commons on Tuesday night, Winston Churchill, secretary of war, declared that the whole of Egypt was in a virtual state of insurrection. The position was so dangerous, he added, that the government had to appeal to men on the point of demobilization to return and save their comrades from being murdered.

The declaration by the war secretary was brought about by the remarks of Sir Donald Macdonald, who said that Great Britain was grossly over-insured with respect to the strength of the army. Mr. Churchill asked if he followed what was taking place in almost every country of the present time, and, if so, how could he say that there was over-insurance in keeping 900,000 men for every purpose, including the divisions on the Rhine and four divisions in the home country, less than the number kept here in the peaceful days before the war.

MEN HAD TO GO BACK
Only three days ago, continued the secretary, a situation developed in Egypt, which was of very grave danger, and which made it necessary to appeal to the men who were collected at various ports for demobilization to go back and help their comrades and save them from being murdered. The whole of Egypt was virtually in a state of insurrection.

Had Sir Donald read of what was taking place on the Black Sea, in Hungary and on the whole frontier of these small states which were guaranteed protection by the league of nations? Sir Donald had said, continued the secretary, that the German army was to be reduced to 100,000 men. The Germans were to have no more boy scouts. That, the speaker asserted, was what the allies were going to demand, but had the Germans agreed to it, and was there any chance of their agreeing to it, if the allies divested themselves of all their forces at the present time?

"THROW AWAY VICTORY"
"The government," said Mr. Churchill, "has to face the real facts. If we squandered our forces at the present time, before our terms are accepted, with European conditions of increasing gravity and perplexity, then we should throw away both hands all the results gained by the sacrifices of millions of our men during the past four years."

The liberal opposition had proposed a series of amendments to the military service bill, which Mr. Churchill declared was intended to wreck the bill. There was no truth in the accusation that the government had not tried the voluntary system.

Objection was taken to men being invited to re-enlist, for as long as two, three and four years. But, unless men were secured for those periods, it would be impossible to relieve territorial and other troops in India and elsewhere, who ought to have effective relief. He thoroughly agreed that the government must do everything possible to recreate a voluntary army at the earliest possible moment.

CALGARY BULL SALE

One hundred and eighteen carloads of bulls shipped from slaughter stations in all parts of Alberta by two hundred and nineteen breeders of pure bred stock, totaling seven hundred and fifty-four bulls, in a few days, the story of the Calgary Bull Sale, the largest annual auction sale of bulls held on this continent. These bulls are contributed by breeders who have searched all over the continent for the best breeding stock and herd headers, that could be found, and who are now bringing to the Calgary sale the best bulls from their herds. Prospective purchasers could not do better than select their bulls from the large number to be offered at this sale. A number of stockmen have made it a practice to purchase their bulls at this sale since the sale was organized nineteen years ago. The freight is paid to purchaser's nearest station in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia at a nominal rate, and special passenger rates are in force from Alberta points. The animals will be judged on Monday, April 7th, and sold morning, afternoon and evening the following three days. In the following order: 9 Gallows, 255 Herefords, 370 Shorthorns and 125 Aberdeen-Angus. In each breed, the youngest will be sold first, and usually working to the aged bulls. The auctioneers at the sale will be S. W. Paisley, of Lacrosse, J. W. Burns, of Calgary, and H. O. Teller, of Farmington, Minn. Catalogues containing the entries and the rules of sale may be obtained from E. L. Richardson, Secretary of the Alberta Cattle Breeders' Association, Calgary.

Arrangements have been completed so that animals purchased at the Calgary bull sale to be shipped outside the range area, may be hand treated instead of vat-dipped, as the new regulations were to call for. The new provision will make it possible for buyers to attend the Calgary sale on the same basis as previously, the hand dipping being done by the Association.

TO RURAL MAIL RECEIVERS
(The Postman Speaks)
I'm one of Canada's favored pets, I'm hearty and I'm hale; I've nothing in the west to brag, But glide around with mail. And one thing neatly breaks my heart, And my nervous system shocks; It's the everlasting penance, That I'm flashing from the box. I carry stamps and envelopes, And postal cards and such; And I would like to sell a few, 'Twould please me very much. But a man can't sell unless you buy, No matter how he talks; So I have kept on driving, After the pennies in the box. It's all right in the spring time, Or when the summer breezes blow, But a different proposition When it's thirty-two below; When all your fingers and your toes Are frozen hard as rocks; It's more, anything but funny, Scratching pennies from the box. And now, quite confidential, I'll tell you something more; A rural carrier in the West, Forgot himself and swore; He said: "I can stand the snow drifts, I can stand the frozen locks, But blast the meanly pennies In a blasted measly box."

When "the roll is called up yonder," And we all shall gather there, They wouldn't let a mail man in If they knew he'd learned to swear. If you want St. Peter to open the gate When your rural carrier knocks, Buy stamps and don't be gully Of putting pennies in the box.

Irrigation as a source of wealth

FEW agricultural districts have grown to prosperity more quickly and founded it more substantially than the country tributary to Letbridge in Southern Alberta. Driving through this territory towards the end of last summer, a prominent official of the Dominion Government at Ottawa, who had been making an extensive tour of Western Canada, remarked that here were the most prosperous agricultural communities he had seen during the whole of his trip. Now this remark is relative. All over the West there are very prosperous districts, where modern homes, spacious barns, well filled granaries, good sized herds of livestock and many other signs reflect the welfare of their owners, reason may be given in one word—irrigation.

Driving into one of these districts from the east, one cannot help but be immediately impressed. There are compact settlements, the deep green fields of alfalfa, in which hogs, sheep or cattle are pasturing, the substantial farm buildings, mostly surrounded by trees, the well fenced farms, all these are evidence of a prosperity which is being built up on solid lines. A measure of the fast development of the whole of the territory on a recent bridge is the village of Coaldale, for this village has grown with the district. But a very short drive from the railway siding only, Coaldale is now an active business centre, with a lumber yard, hardware business, general stores, hay market, elevator facilities, bank and other businesses. The community is also served by one of the best and most up-to-date consolidated schools in the West.

Probably no other community in Canada has received more settlers who have purchased lands at the high average price which has been paid by those who have settled among the Coaldale community in the last two years. Many of these settlers have come from the irrigated districts of the States, particularly from Washington, Idaho and California. An illustration will serve to show the value placed by them on the land in this territory. A settler who purchased a farm four miles west of Coaldale at $102 an acre, recently bought the quarter section adjoining him for $100 an acre. This was without any improvements except a timber measure. But the property could not be bought from its purchaser now for $102 an acre, and he would not care to sell at that price. The number of tenant farmers throughout the Letbridge district who are purchasing irrigated land at similar prices is a good illustration of its productive value. Men who have farmed land here for a year or two on a rental basis are purchasing it now at ninety and a hundred dollars an acre. Instances of such purchases during the last year or two are becoming numerous and the inference is that the buyers have made sufficient money out of their crops to be able to purchase the land on which they were growing. This is probably one of the most striking facts in connection with the development of the district, for the men who have bought these lands knew what they were capable of producing.

As for renting, the demand for and by tenants is unprecedented, notwithstanding the fact that rents have doubled in many cases during the last three years. Whereas at that time irrigated land was being rented at $5 and $6 an acre, as much as $10 and $12 an acre was being rented in 1918; while owners who rented their land for the crop plus received much more than this in many instances. The number of settlers who have arrived and settled there of late is a large number of settlers of high average intelligence. Most of them have had experience with irrigation in the States and are able to make comparisons with other districts. The comparison with other districts is that the facilities for irrigation in Southern Alberta are equal or are superior to those to which they have been accustomed. A farmer who came from one of the irrigated districts in Idaho to this season was at first somewhat discouraged with conditions in Alberta. But business matters relating to his return home have been settled, and he has decided to stay. The season he had an opportunity to compare conditions and crops in his old community with those in the Letbridge district, and he came back highly elated. "Conditions in Alberta are ever so much better," he said. "These facts about the Letbridge district are interesting because they reflect the enormous possibilities of the other irrigable areas of Southern Alberta. From like conditions like results may be expected. And what is being accomplished at Letbridge can be accomplished in other parts of Southern Alberta where similar conditions prevail. It is only during the last few years that people have begun to appreciate at their proper value the irrigable lands near Letbridge, but since have begun to realize their worth, development of the country has gone on apace. The effect of this development has been to increase the interest in other irrigable areas in the province and a more rapid settlement of them. As the area is considerably larger than the Letbridge district the effect of their development on the prosperity of the Province is incalculable.

What the War Has Taught Us About Corsets

NEVER in the world's history has any one article of clothing been so prominently brought before the world as an economic force, as has the corset by the part it played in the Great War.

It was demonstrated to the Governments of Europe in the early stages of the conflict that women could not stand the burden of their unaccustomed duties unless they were properly corseted.

Thousands broke down under the strain of the new work and production suffered. When these same women were put into proper corsets, sickness decreased and in many instances production was practically doubled.

From then on, corsets were recognized as an essential in war work, and, when thousands of Canadian women responded to their country's call.

GOSSARD

Corsets

were privileged to contribute in a large way to the important duty of preserving their health and efficiency.

Daily it was demonstrated that the correctly corseted woman was capable of greater and more sustained effort than her uncorseted or poorly corseted sister. The hygienic body support of a correctly designed and fitted corset kept thousands of willing workers kept and sustained that splendid woman power that was one of the greatest forces contributing to the conclusion of a successful peace.

Not only has the war taught every thinking woman the value of correct corseting; it has taught her the wisdom of buying only corsets that are hygienically correct; it has taught her to be fitted carefully and to adjust her corset each time it is worn so she may realize its full benefit and service.

Gossard Corsets are the complete expression of modern corsetry. If possible, the new Spring and Summer corsets are superior to those of the past season which were generally acknowledged to be without equal in meeting the needs of active womanhood from the standpoint of comfort, hygiene and style.

The highly specialized service of our corset department is maintained with an earnest appreciation of the vital service we are rendering to womanhood.

Our NEW SPRING MODELS ARE HERE

and we want you to come in and let our Graduate Corsetiere demonstrate the advantages of wearing Gossards, for they are the only corset that safeguard your health, give you all-day corset comfort, and at the same time completely conform to Fashion's lines.

REVENUE FROM DOMINION

At the beginning of his criticism Mr. Crawford said that since 1905 the provincial government had received a total revenue from the dominion of $19,612,335. Added to this was the internal revenue of the province during that period totalling $33,202,789, or a grand total of $52,815,124 of revenue exclusive of borrowings since 1905.

Under the Sifton and Stewart governments, he said, with an increase of revenue of from 100 to 150 per cent, over the Rutherford government, there had been a deficit every year as follows:

1915.....$70,440

1916.....$73,139

1917.....$92,396

1918.....$101,014

Total.....$2,589,359

Everything that the government can find to tax, he said, was taxed to the limit. The meagre sinking fund of $15,000 represented less than 2 1/2 per cent of the public debt, and because of the unbusinesslike method of investing it, it was no sinking fund at all. He repeated his previous figures, that out of the total sinking fund of $754,050, a total of $415,670 is invested in telephone bonds and the telephone system, a $10,000,000 utility had only set aside today $231,050 to retire its own debentures, or $214,001 less than the provincial sinking fund invested in the telephone debentures. He reiterated his statistics to the effect that to date only $69,753 had been spent in materials for renewals on a $10,000,000 utility.

CRITICIZES TREASURER

He decided that either the telephone system is being kept up to standard by capital funds improperly expended or else renewals will have to be made soon by increasing rates. He scored Provincial Treasurer Mitchell for having, "in a moment of enthusiasm," invested only $1,550 in Victory bonds, with $4,914 of sinking funds drawing 3 1/2 per cent. interest in the Imperial Bank and the balance of the sinking fund invested in other provincial bonds which he said could not be considered a good investment in view of the deficit of $2,589,359, piled up during the years when the government had resorted to every conceivable form of taxation and license.

The speaker then turned his attention to Mr. Garpley's denunciation of the wild lands tax branch especially, saying that salaries, which in 1916 were $10,113 in this division, had increased to $17,200 in 1917 and $19,125 in 1918 to $22,603, whereas there should have been a decrease, as wild lands are becoming less each year.

He cited the travelling expenses as $17,378 in 1916, jumping up to $21,438 in 1917, "election year," and falling off again in 1918 to $13,413.

"These sets of figures," said the speaker, "prove two things. First, that the dismissal of officials after the close of the 1918 session when there was a general shake-up, and the taking on of new officials meant an increase in salaries of $6,570. Second, that it takes $7,946 less in this department for travelling expenses the year after election year."

Mr. Crawford followed up this line in citing the general department expenses, showing that in 1917 they were $7,303 and in 1918 $4,666, "a decrease of $2,637 the year following election year, while there was a total increase in travelling of $10,000 in all divisions of this department of $10,562 the year following the election."

"The only logical conclusion," said Mr. Crawford, "is that $10,000 of the provincial money in this department was spent for other purposes which will be borne out when the report of the public accounts committee comes in during the year 1919. To this must be added $441 spent by Mr. Garpley while in his own constituency the last money preceding the election. The Hon. Mr. Garpley's travelling expenses during the year 1918 in which he held office for eight months and two weeks, and in which he was in his past record, the amount being $12,226."

Mr. Crawford then whaled the department of agriculture, taking up the administration of the game act and giving the following figures for that:

1916—Revenue, $23,983; administration of the act, $26,818; deficit, $2,835.

1917—Revenue, $23,866; administration of the act, $29,606; deficit, $5,740.

1918—Revenue, $29,400; administration of the act, $24,644; surplus, $4,756.

These figures, he contended, showed the heavy deficit incurred during the election year, in which he said, the travelling expenses of the minister's secretary was as $7 to $1 in an ordinary year.

The speaker then clashed with Mr. Garpley over the alleged dismissal of employees who supported the union government and turned again to the department of agriculture.

He said that the minister had finally discovered that the administration division of that department was a costly failure, it having cost the province in six years $100,000 for administration alone against total operation expenses for the same period of $24,000. In 1911 and 1912 he said the combined operation and administration expenses for the two years were $46,745.50.

The total administration and operating expenses to date of the agricultural department he placed at $451,205.21 against a total revenue of $267,359.52, or a loss to date of $183,845.69. This he said, was a startling state of affairs for a minister who, in his first annual report said that one of the objects in starting the demonstration farms was to show that the farmer who was provided with a reasonable amount of capital could make money out of farming.

He declared that a large number of employees dismissed from the latter's department immediately after the session of 1918 were let out because he was well known they were supporters of the Union government.

Mr. Garpley cited the testimony of Mr. Perrie, deputy minister of municipalities, before the public accounts committee, that these employees were released on account of "inefficiency as proof that Mr. Crawford was wrong. Crawford went back with the statement that these employees had got recommendations from Mr. Perrie, and most of them now held responsible positions in the city of Edmonton.

1916—Revenue, $23,983; administration of the act, $26,818; deficit, $2,835.

1917—Revenue, $23,866; administration of the act, $29,606; deficit, $5,740.

1918—Revenue, $29,400; administration of the act, $24,644; surplus, $4,756.

These figures, he contended, showed the heavy deficit incurred during the election year, in which he said, the travelling expenses of the minister's secretary was as $7 to $1 in an ordinary year.

The speaker then clashed with Mr. Garpley over the alleged dismissal of employees who supported the union government and turned again to the department of agriculture.

He said that the minister had finally discovered that the administration division of that department was a costly failure, it having cost the province in six years $100,000 for administration alone against total operation expenses for the same period of $24,000. In 1911 and 1912 he said the combined operation and administration expenses for the two years were $46,745.50.

The total administration and operating expenses to date of the agricultural department he placed at $451,205.21 against a total revenue of $267,359.52, or a loss to date of $183,845.69. This he said, was a startling state of affairs for a minister who, in his first annual report said that one of the objects in starting the demonstration farms was to show that the farmer who was provided with a reasonable amount of capital could make money out of farming.

He declared that a large number of employees dismissed from the latter's department immediately after the session of 1918 were let out because he was well known they were supporters of the Union government.

Mr. Garpley cited the testimony of Mr. Perrie, deputy minister of municipalities, before the public accounts committee, that these employees were released on account of "inefficiency as proof that Mr. Crawford was wrong. Crawford went back with the statement that these employees had got recommendations from Mr. Perrie, and most of them now held responsible positions in the city of Edmonton.

REVENUE FROM DOMINION

At the beginning of his criticism Mr. Crawford said that since 1905 the provincial government had received a total revenue from the dominion of $19,612,335. Added to this was the internal revenue of the province during that period totalling $33,202,789, or a grand total of $52,815,124 of revenue exclusive of borrowings since 1905.

Under the Sifton and Stewart governments, he said, with an increase of revenue of from 100 to 150 per cent, over the Rutherford government, there had been a deficit every year as follows:

1914.....$146,311

1915.....$70,440

1916.....$73,139

1917.....$92,396

1918.....$101,014

Total.....$2,589,359

Everything that the government can find to tax, he said, was taxed to the limit. The meagre sinking fund of $15,000 represented less than 2 1/2 per cent of the public debt, and because of the unbusinesslike method of investing it, it was no sinking fund at all. He repeated his previous figures, that out of the total sinking fund of $754,050, a total of $415,670 is invested in telephone bonds and the telephone system, a $10,000,000 utility had only set aside today $231,050 to retire its own debentures, or $214,001 less than the provincial sinking fund invested in the telephone debentures. He reiterated his statistics to the effect that to date only $69,753 had been spent in materials for renewals on a $10,000,000 utility.

CRITICIZES TREASURER

He decided that either the telephone system is being kept up to standard by capital funds improperly expended or else renewals will have to be made soon by increasing rates. He scored Provincial Treasurer Mitchell for having, "in a moment of enthusiasm," invested only $1,550 in Victory bonds, with $4,914 of sinking funds drawing 3 1/2 per cent. interest in the Imperial Bank and the balance of the sinking fund invested in other provincial bonds which he said could not be considered a good investment in view of the deficit of $2,589,359, piled up during the years when the government had resorted to every conceivable form of taxation and license.

The speaker then turned his attention to Mr. Garpley's denunciation of the wild lands tax branch especially, saying that salaries, which in 1916 were $10,113 in this division, had increased to $17,200 in 1917 and $19,125 in 1918 to $22,603, whereas there should have been a decrease, as wild lands are becoming less each year.

He cited the travelling expenses as $17,378 in 1916, jumping up to $21,438 in 1917, "election year," and falling off again in 1918 to $13,413.

BENTLEY AND DISTRICT

THE IDLE THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FARMER.

Some two years ago it was reported here that Tommy Coggins, who volunteered early in the war, had been killed in action on the Western front. Everyone was very sorry to hear of Tommy's demise; he was only a boy, and a nice boy. Last week Tommy returned from Europe, and for a stiff he looked exceptionally healthy and well preserved.

As deer and bear are becoming scarce round here Allan is out hunting trouble for a change. He has it in for old Bill because he wouldn't help him put up a dirty deal on Ben, helping therefore to make trouble between neighbors. He went to Mac telling him Bill was trying to get him, Mac, put off Jimmie's farm, Bill and written Jimmie this, that and tither. Poor old Bill never wrote Jimmie in his life. He next visited Glover's domicile during the absence of the man and raised old Hades with the wife because George had given Bill some freeword. To round out his performance he got busy distributing some disgraceful and untrue yarns about Jim's (friend of Bill) daughters. We hear Jim proposes taking action against Al for slander and defamation of character. It is no wonder the winter has been so warm round here.

An additional incursion of Seven Ups has taken place this last two weeks and a number of farms have been sold. The Sevens seem prepared to give any old price for any old farm provided the seller will take a mighty small payment down. These transactions look to us rather like a gamble. A gamble on the part of the seller that he will get paid, and a gamble on the part of the buyer that he will be able to make the farm pay for itself.

A visitation on a large scale of the seventeen year locust is expected this year over a considerable part of the U.S. Thank goodness we in Alberta are exempt from the locust, the potato bug and the pea weevil.

A New York man has just got a patent for a perfect cork screw. Too bad, just when prohibition is becoming universal. Now that the greater part of the U.S. and Canada are on the water wagon the professional prohibitionist will have to look out for some other occupation. I see one has made a start by suggesting a campaign against tea and coffee. He finds that between 1909 and 1918 the consumption of tea in the States increased 3 1/2%, ergo the people are going from tipping whisky to tipping tea, therefore tea must be a habit.

forming beverage, therefore it must be a drug, therefore its use should be restricted. Near in order we suppose it will be made a punishable offence to drink anything but Postum. Perhaps so, but Toronto under prohibition seems to need increased prison accommodation, during 1918 the increase of crime over 1917 in that burg was 2, burglary 15, housebreaking and shopbreaking, 191, robbery 8, thefts, including autos, 79, total increase 1237. Please, someone, do jump on me as an anti-prohibitionist, for I am not. Personally, I am greatly indebted to prohibition, but I am one of those fools who doesn't like to see a movement bolstered up with statements that won't hold water. I have heard some professional testator lecturers harangue about the heredity of drunkenness. That is all bull. Doctors who have investigated, say it isn't. Some of the strongest temperance advocates I know were the children of drunkards, and the worse boozers I ever met had been brought up in strict temperance homes. Maine has been dry for fifty years, I have hardly met a Sinner of Maine man who wasn't more or less (generally more) of a whisky addict.

In days of my youth we had brimstone and treacle, with other nauseous drugs, to cure human ills. Then arrived the homeopath with his infinitesimal dose in a lot of water. After that came the Christian Scientist, who said you weren't ill, you only thought you were, and who appointed you with oil and prayer. Later we have the Chiropractor, who pounds your spine and cures you of bunions or appendicitis. Now I read the Col. umbi University has begun a course of "Musicotherapy." I have often heard that "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." Now they are going to try it on sick folk.

AT THE PEACE TABLE

By Edgar A. Guest.
Who shall sit at the table, then, when the terms of peace are made? The wisest men of the troubled lands in their silver and gold brocade? Yes, they shall gather in solemn state to sign the terms of the new peace. But who shall speak for the unseen dead that shall come to the council place? Though you see them not and you hear them not, they shall sit at the table, too; they shall be there, too; they shall throng the room where the peace is made and know what it is you do; The innocent dead from the sea shall rise to stand at the wise man's side, And over his shoulder a boy shall look—A boy that they crucified? You may guard the doors of that council hall with barriers strong and stout. But the dead unbidden shall enter there, and never you'll shut them out. And the man that died in the open boat, and the babes that suffered worse. Shall sit at the table when peace is made by the side of a martyred nurse.

You may see them not, but they'll all be there; when they speak you may fail to hear; You may think that you're making your pacts alone, but their spirits will hover near; And whatever the terms of the peace you make with the tyrant whose hands are red, You must please not only the living here, but must satisfy your dead.

A Trail Across the Rockies

(1) Homestead on the Kootenay River. (2) Camp in the forest of the Kootenay Valley. (3) Summit of the Simpson Pass—line of the Great Divide separating Alberta and British Columbia.

The first trip over the Simpson Pass through the Canadian Pacific Rockies was made by Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson Bay Company, in 1811, and formed part of the first recorded overland route from the coast of the Pacific to the melting glaciers of the snow-capped Rockies high above. At least one cyclone seemed to have swept down its valley, and the river itself had washed away several corners so that our trail had to be made, or found anew on many a mile.

Once while Ed. Dawson, the leading guide, was backing a trail through a deadfall, his saddle pony took it into its head to cross the torrent. The packmen followed suit, and before we could stop them, our camp, and most of all our food supplies, were each living race of the most vicious looking water I ever care to see. There was nothing to do but follow, and evidently we got across—else how could this tale have ever been told? As we approached the Summit of the Pass, one grizzly left a visiting card such as grizzlies do leave—scattered up on the trail and again we saw deer. The Summit, according to the guides, should be ten feet deep in snow, and the description given by Sir George Simpson gave the same anticipation: "We were surrounded by snowbanks and crests of the mountains were the cracking of prostrate branches under the tread of horses, and the roaring of the stream as it leaped down its rocky course."

About seven hours of hard work brought us to the height of land, the hinge as it were between the eastern and western waters. We breakfasted on the level isthmus, which did not exceed fourteen paces wide, between the kettle-like basins of two opposite oceans, murmuring over their beds of mossy stones, and each side a long farwell, could hardly fail to attune our minds to the sublimity of the scene. "But between these hundred fountains, the common progeny of the same snow weather, there was this remarkable difference of temperature. At the source of the Columbia showed 49°, while that of the Saskatchewan raised the mercury to 53°, the thermometer meanwhile striking as high as 71° in the shade. From the vicinity of perpetual snow, we estimated the elevation of the height of land to be seven or eight thousand feet above the level of the sea. None of the surrounding peaks appeared to rise nearly half that altitude above our heads."

We ourselves found the snow all gone and our horses found sweet and ample pasture on an Alpine meadow. As we looked back from the Great Divide upon the mountains of the Selkirk, we had as desired—rugged outlines capped and fringed with perpetual snow. The back side of the Summit within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government, and its Superintendent of Parks was good enough to provide us with a trail which really was a trail. To the right up Healy Creek we had a glimpse of Mount Assiniboine, the giant of these giant mountains—one glimpse however, for in a minute the clouds came and in a turbulent of clouds. These without adventure except for a plague of mosquitoes we reached the C.P.R. Hotel at Banff, alive with summer tourists who found in our cavalcade, a fitting subject for innumerable snap shots.

The fishing, I may say in passing, which one gets on such a trip is of the very best. Every creek, every pool seems to be stocked with trout, all inquisitive about the nature of the fly. Brown Hackle and Gray Hackle are always deadly. The red flies such as Farmington's do not seem to take as well in these waters. There were both Dolly Varden and Steelhead to our credit on the Simpson, averaging a little over a pound. In the Kootenay the trout ran up to two and three pounds and were very tame, though shy in the middle of the day.—J. M. G.

MAKES WASHING EASY
The Red Star Washer makes wash day welcome. It works so easily a boy of 6 can run it when loaded. It abolishes all the drudgery of wash day. Does the work in half the time it takes to do it by hand.

RED STAR Washer

The Red Star Washer is easy to operate because the mechanism rides on two sets of ball bearings. The fly wheel is large. The lid is easy to lift, and you can raise the clothes from the clothes before you open the lid, so the clothes will not come up with it or tear. The mechanism is very simple and compact, and so strong that the Red Star will last a generation and always run as well as when new.

Phone and have us send one up, we call and see them on our line.
